Decolonial narratives in Kazakhstan: identity, memory, civil society

The widening debates on decoloniality, as well as post-colonial studies in Kazakhstan necessitates developing a critical stance on the topic. In this sense repeated mapping on collectives, artists, civic activists whose work can be analyzed via decolonial prism is very important. In this project conducted in Spring 2023 Kamila Smagulova has provided an overview of current actors of decolonial debates and how it shapes current narratives on memory, activism and identity on a grassroots level.
